

BRANDING ANNOUNCEMENT

20th November, 2007

Dear Valued Customer,

Ingersoll Rand Security Technologies has recently undertaken a review of our brand portfolio and strategy, and we are pleased to announce a simplified branding platform designed to better reflect our strategic focus and further enhance our ability to deliver effective communications to our target markets and customers.

Moving forward, products in the lock, door furniture, pull handle and general hardware categories for Residential applications will be marketed under the Schlage brand. You may have already seen the following recently-developed new Schlage logo, which is already shown on product packaging:

Selected products in the lock, door furniture, pull handle and general architectural hardware categories for Commercial applications will be encompassed under the Legge brand. We are pleased to introduce the following new logo:

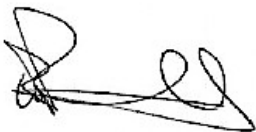

Products presently marketed under our Dalco, Legge Pacific, ME and Medio brands will transition to one of the above identities over the coming 12 months. The comprehensive product range, design, quality and innovation synonymous with these brands will continue under the new branding platform.

We will initially be making the transition on our new website, catalogues and product packaging. For the time being, product codes and descriptions will remain unchanged. We will build any necessary amendments into the next revision of our price book and provide electronic copies for any customers wishing to easily upload into their databases and business systems at that time.

These changes will enable us to present a wider range of products and solutions within a simplified brand portfolio, provide a more consistent identity across associated product categories, and communicate our brand promise effectively.

Should you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact the undersigned or your local Ingersoll Rand Security Technologies representative.

Yours sincerely,
